THE HEAVENLY HOME.

BY R. Y. CLARKE.

Dear heavenly land! thy glorious home

Beyond the cheerful sky;

No bright and bright with life

And joys that never die.

No changes there, no cruel bright

To mar immortal bliss;

No wearying, no pining light,

Where Love and Glory kiss.

No wintry rains, no faded flowers,

No night with shadowy fears;

No tears, no sighs, no withered hopes,

No fall of doubt and fear.

No earthly sun to scorch and blast,

No simoon's burning breath;

No stormy passions in the heart

Producing wars and death.

No bitter griefs over joys

That buried years inform.

No spectral dreams of direful fate

That future years may hold.

No hopeless longings for content,

No painful strivings after good,

That never glads our eyes.

No breaking hearts, no kneelings down

Over freshly upturned sod;

No slatterned nerves, no wrinking brow,

No growing old, thank God.

Dear, blessed land, beyond the world

Thou art on our hearts

As a bright and shining star

That guides our feet

Along the path of life

And leads us to thy home

Where we shall dwell

Forever and ever.

Thou art our Heavenly Home.

There is a short article we find floating around on the unknown sea of journalism that many men should paste in their hats and ladies on their bonnets. If you can be found on the back of the hat or the bonnet people liable to quick emotions with sense but not reason, showing their nature in their countenance, and their marriage, and friendship by unwarranted suspicion are found in many cities. Let them read and profit by this.

There are some people, yes, many people, who look on with indifference to the daily intercourse of the family without some fact, the most common of the

The Caldwell Tragedy.

From the Charleston News.

COLUMBIA, Sept. 24

Upon the commitment of the coroner to the jail for killing Captain Montgomery, it is rumored that the efforts will be at once made to effect his release by an application for a writ of habeas corpus. His brother from Charleston, and others of his friends, have arrived in the city. The Hon.

C. W. Montgomery, one of the parties engaged in the fight, who was yesterday released from confinement, by his own shares the fate of the cell with Tupper. Captain Tupper's statement of the facts of the affair differs widely from that which he has heretofore given.

The reporter of the News, in an interview with the prisoner this evening, found him in as cheerful a state of mind as the circumstances permit.

He occupies the roomy prison cell in the jail in which the alleged Kluklux of Union were confined. Many people have visited him during the day. A hot bench and two chairs make up the furniture of the cell.

Tupper expresses much grief at the fatal result of the rencontre, but claims that the trial will show that he acted in self-defense. The following is the verbatim statement made to your reporter this evening by Captain Tupper, which is confirmed by C. W. Montgomery, who was present during the interview in the presence of one other person. He says:

Colonel Charles W. Montgomery, his friend of long acquaintance in Charleston, where they both formerly resided, called upon him at his residence on the night prior to the publication of the (Montgomery) card in the Daily News. He was received severely upon Judge Smith's Melton and requested that Tupper should accompany him to the Phoenix office, and also that he should read the card which he proposed to publish, and which was to appear the next morning. Tupper dressed himself immediately and went with Montgomary to the Phoenix office. On his return Montgomery explained to him the article that had appeared in the Beaufort Republican, giving the language of Judge Melton in a recent speech at that place, reflecting upon Montgomery. Upon arriving at the Phoenix office, Montgomary showed the card to Tupper, and the latter said he endorsed his course, and the card appeared the next morning in the Phoenix. During the day of the publication of Colonel Montgomery's card, Tupper stated that he was informed by several persons that Captain Caldwell had been to several points for Judge Melton to return to Columbia immedi-
